The ICSC Hands-on Seminars

FICS are embracing and using the technology available to us. We are offering the delivery of the upper and lower extremity courses using a hybrid method. The theory section will be via online learning which is opened up 30 days before the delivery of the practicum face-to-face sessions.

Online learning and Practical indoor learning

Theory virtual session comprises all functions related to the delivery of the theory section of the course. It will form the foundation knowledge of the course and must be attended prior to the candidate attending the face-to-face session. A short quiz is completed at the end of the session and recorded on the candidate's file for completion purposes.

Practicum (face-to-face) sessions will comprise the learning materials, active and interactive, which involve students hands-on skills. These sessions allow for interaction between the students and the instructors, networking opportunities and in-class practice to refine skills learnt.

Completion: Candidates must attend both the virtual and practicum sessions, to be awarded completion of the seminar. All candidates' records will be kept by FICS for the awarding of the seminar completion certificate and the completion of the ICSC.
